Annual Report 2016

Our 25th Anniversary

2016 was an exciting year, as we celebrated 25 years of championing youth voice and engagement! We know that young people are powerful agents of change and experts of their own experience. We partner with them to ensure their ideas are at the forefront of program, community, and policy development. This means facilitating strong youth-adult partnerships, incubating new youth program models, and amplifying youth voice across the sector through shared measurement and learning.

The Students Commission was born at a national youth conference in 1991, which brought together young people from every province and territory to develop recommendations to share with the Prime Minister of Canada. The final recommendation of the inaugural conference was to 'commission' an organization for students, that would work to implement the recommendations and present them to the Prime Minister. And so...The Students Commission of Canada was born!

The Young Decisions Makers Conference

We celebrated our anniversary by hosting a national Young Decisions Makers conference and our first ever Sharing the Stories Knowledge Exchange at YMCA Cedar Glen. Young people and adult allies from across Canada came together to explore key issues of concern to youth. We were thrilled to receive a tweet from Justin Trudeau at the end of the conference inviting us to share our report. Echoing our past, a group of youth delegates submitted their recommendations to the Prime Minister's office in July 2016.

Opportunities for Youth

We innovate and incubate dynamic youth programs.

Children Lead the Way Conference

We were excited to work internationally in 2016, as we partnered with Save the Children Canada on their Children Lead the Way Project. It was a joy to host young people from seven countries at the Children Lead the Way International Conference, where they built an international declaration on the rights of working children. The International Declaration was shared on YouTube and in three languages: English, French and Spanish.

RCMP Youth Leadership Development Workshop

Maintaining a long-time partnership with the RCMP, we delivered our fifth Youth Leadership Development Workshop at Depot Base in Regina, SK. The workshop focused on building partnerships between Indigenous youth and RCMP officers. Officers and youth worked together to develop local action projects geared towards engaging young people. It was a great example of youth-adult partnerships in action.

#YDM416 is born

Our Toronto youth group used the summer of 2016 to re-focus and identify an issue that we were passionate about working on together. Thanks to a generous donation from Cadillac Fairview, we were able to spend time building relationships as a group and exploring different issues. In partnership with adult allies at the SCC, we decided to take action on structural racism because it impacts so many of us on a day-to-day basis. Our group, now named #YDM416 (Young Decision Makers 416), spent the fall studying this issue and identifying how we wanted to take action. We are looking forward to developing a youth-led workshop on structural racism for service providers.

Youth Education and Employment Opportunities

We're pretty lucky to work with some amazing young people that truly drive the projects here at the SCC. Well over half of our staff and volunteers are youth and young adults under the age of 24. This includes high school students involved in co-op education, part and full-time staff members, and project volunteers. We'd like to express our sincere gratitude to all of our youth team for their hard work, insight, and energy. Our work is strong because it is built on youth-adult partnerships.

Health Canada's Youth Leadership Team

We were happy to maintain our long-standing partnership with Health Canada over 2016 by supporting another Youth Leadership Team (YLT) meeting in Ottawa. YLT meetings focus on bringing young people together to address tobacco control issues in Canada. This year, the YLT gave Health Canada input on packaging, helping them better understand the impact of tobacco marketing. The YLT is the longest standing federal government youth advisory committee.

UNICEF Youth Voice: Index for children well-being

For a wealthy country, Canada's children aren't fairing so well. They continue to experience significant barriers to their health, education, income and life satisfaction. Over 2016, we worked with UNICEF to continue building their Index of Child Well-Being in order to track and understand how Canadian youth are doing. We engaged close to 120 young people in six communities across Canada to share their experiences and provide feedback into the proposed index.

Youth Matters

We have partnered with Youth Matters in New Brunswick since 2011. We support Youth Matters in the facilitation of bi-weekly youth meetings at the New Brunswick Youth Centre (NBYC). The NBYC is a closed custody facility for youth detained under the Youth Criminal Justice Act. Our facilitation team includes students from New Brunswick Community College (NBCC) in Miramichi. The youth group meetings explore topics like the Four Pillars, Healthy Masculinities and Healthy Relationships.

Influencing Those Who Influence Youth

We support organizations across Canada to help young people thrive.

Collective Impact for Toronto Youth

The graduation rate for Black racialized youth in Toronto is more than 30% below the Toronto District School Board average. Through the Collective Impact for Toronto Youth project, we are partnering with organizations across the city to close that gap, working to ensure young people are supported in all areas of their life. 2016 was a busy year for us. With funding from YouthCI and LesLois Shaw Foundation we began implementing our theory of change with three Neighbourhood Clusters: The Scarborough Executives Network, The Youth Services Network of Scarborough, and Success Beyond Limits in Jane and Finch. Our Youth Incubators have done a spectacular job engaging young people in the complex world of CITY through a weekly youth group tackling structural racism and through four video projects on CITY's integrated system of care.

Youth to Kingston (Y2K)

Y2K is a community movement aimed at making Kingston a more youth-friendly and inclusive region. With support from the Ontario Trillium Foundation’s Youth Opportunities Fund in 2016, we created more youth leadership roles and implemented a dedicated expansion to the Frontenac, Lennox and Addington counties. We worked with our partners at Three Things Consulting, Community Living Kingston, Boys and Girls Club of Kingston and Area and Pathways to Education to identify and hire 15 youth facilitators. The youth facilitators worked in partnership with adult allies through youth-adult partnership teams to ensure youth are heard and engaged in transforming their community. There were five youth-adult partnership teams: Kingston Community Action, FL&A Community Action, Outreach, Participatory Action Research (PAR), and Communication. Our activities in 2016 culminated with an annual Youth Forum which engaged close to 250 people in the region.

Prince Edward County Youth Collective Impact Project

As a model, Collective Impact is about aligning partners and efforts around a common goal for large scale social impact. We are excited to be working with the Prince Edward County Youth Collective Impact Project which is striving to increase high school graduation rates. We’ve been sharing our experience of facilitating CI projects as a backbone organization, and have begun directly supporting the Shared Measurement for the project through our research and evaluation platform, Sharing the Stories.

Saskatoon Youth Strategy Launch

Like many communities in Canada, youth in Saskatoon highlight structural racism, violence, access to services, and access to housing and basic needs, as the key barriers impacting young people’s ability to thrive. 2016 marked the launch of a Collective Impact project aimed at supporting young people’s successful transition to adulthood through a city-wide youth strategy. As the project facilitator, we are delighted to be working with a strong team of local youth and youth serving agencies to implement solutions developed through youth-adult partnership.

Sharing the Stories

We amplify the voices of young people through research and evaluation.

Sharing the Stories (StS) is our innovative research and evaluation platform. 2016 marked the third year of our 10-year expansion strategy for Sharing the Stories. By the end of 2016, we moved from supporting 162 to 230 unique programs and organizations. Many of our new subscribers were collective impact partners and new Youth Opportunities Fund (YOF) members from rural, remote, and urban communities across Ontario. Our StS subscribers are learning a great deal about their programs and are better able to tell the story of their impact. By using consistent, academically validated tools, we are able to compare individual results to aggregate data from programs across the country. This lets us spot trends, highlight gaps, and amplify the collective voices of youth.

Planning for the Future

We look ahead so that we will thrive.

Our staff and board began an exciting strategic planning process over 2016, which will guide our organization over the next 10 years. We look forward to finalizing and launching the new plan in 2017. We're doing our best to keep up with the Jetsons, so we used 2016 to transition our IT support to a group of coders and technicians who are enhancing the integrity of our technical systems. Finally, we were thrilled to hire Christa Romaldi as our new Associate Director to support internal operations and long-term succession planning.
