SHARING THE STORIES

FEBRUARY 2018

The Sharing the Stories Team's main goal is to express others' ideas and share youth voice in creative ways. We used daily anonymous surveys asking the youth delegates to answer questions revolving around their engagement – HEAD: What did you learn today?; HEART: How do you feel about today?; FEET: What will you do with what you learned today?; SPIRIT: How did you connect today? These surveys told us a story about how people changed over the course of the conference. Our group then took the surveys and picked out themes that emerged from them.

With these themes and quotes we were better able to help other groups tell their stories. We were able to add the quotes and images to their report templates to give them a good starting point when it came time for them to write their reports.

In addition to the surveys, we documented the event through photos, video and interviews. From these, we created images for social media with the quotes we collected from the surveys. The group put together a concept for a video to be shown at the presentation on Monday.

Throughout the conference, the team engaged the other delegates in storytelling and sharing their stories and experiences.
